MARILYN MASON

MUSIC BY CONTEMPORARY COMPOSERS

- *Ernst Krenek..... Die vier Winde Suite, Op.223 (1975)
(b. 1900)
1. Euros
 2. Notos: 3 Kanons
 - a. Reversible
 - b. Mensuratum
 - c. Free, for pedals alone
 3. Zephyros
 4. Boreas

Since the organ operates on wind power, it seemed to me appropriate to dedicate an organ piece to the four winds that were believed to dominate the atmosphere of ancient Greece. Euros, the eastern wind, introduces itself with a vigorous statement of a twelve-tone row, but does not stick to it, blowing now softly, now harshly, even carrying on his wings a sturdy chorale before petering out with his twelve-tone row. The southern Notos arrives with learned freight: three canons, the first of which is so written that it will sound exactly the same after the page is turned upside down and the music read off in that position. This is, of course, an entirely gratuitous exercise because the two versions will, by definition, sound absolutely alike. The second is a mensuration canon in which the melodic line of one part is imitated by the other two at two different speeds, in the proportions of 1:2:3. The third canon is a free interplay of a twelve-tone row and its inversion. Its performance limits activity to the organist's feet. Zephyros is the gentle westwind, and so is the soft and balmy music that represents him, while Boreas, the fierce northerly, blows in with gusts of brutal sound clusters and breezy passagework, interrupted by a few deceiving lulls.

- *Alden Ashforth..... Sailing to Byzantium, for Organ and Electronic
(b. 1933) Tape (1973)

This work was commissioned by Marilyn Mason and is dedicated to her. The composer writes: "Yeats' poem Sailing to Byzantium expresses a desire to leave behind the transient temporal sensual world and retreat to the eternal world of spirit, of art and of intellect: 'The artifice of eternity'. His image of this unaging realm, 'the holy city of Byzantium', was inspired by reading that in the Byzantine Emperor's palace there was a tree of singing birds entirely wrought of silver and gold. The notion of a voyage from nature to art, from the world of reality to an artificial world existing outside of real time, struck me as a provocative musical scenario.

reading that in the Byzantine Emperor's palace there was a tree of singing birds entirely wrought of silver and gold. The notion of a voyage from nature to art, from the world of reality to an artificial world existing outside of real time, struck me as a provocative musical scenario.

"The piece is in four sections. The opening section, suggesting the temporal world of the senses, includes such real sounds as brooks, birds and a melody hummed by a lyric tenor. In the second section, where both organ and tape are in transition to a different sort of world, the electronic sounds are constituted of materials created by encephalo-electronic (bio-feedback) means, whereby such dimensions as pitch, attack, and vibrato were produced by controlling electronic synthesizers directly by my own brain waves (amplified up to a million times). In the third section the organ and tape achieve a condition of melodic and harmonic balance and stasis. The organ solo of the final section, transforming the opening melody through variation techniques, is ultimately joined by 'birds' that are entirely artificially wrought.

MARILYN MASON is University Organist and Chairman of the Organ Department at The University of Michigan in Ann Arbor. She has been guest Professor at Columbia University and also at Union Theological Seminary, where she earned the degree of Doctor of Sacred Music. The University of Michigan honored her, in 1972, with the Distinguished Faculty Achievement Award. Marilyn Mason was the first American woman to play in Westminster Abbey, the first woman organist to play in Latin America, and the first American organist to play in Egypt. Numerous invitations have taken her to five continents: North and South America, Europe, Africa, and Australia. She has served as adjudicator at almost every organ playing competition in the world; her own repertoire is immense, covering every period of literature. Her artistic achievements as a recitalist, teacher, judge and recorder are extensive. In further contribution to her profession, she has commissioned over thirty works by contemporary American composers, each dedicated to her and premiered by her.

MARILYN MASON

MARILYN MASON is Professor of Music and Chairman of the Organ Department at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. She has been guest Professor at Columbia University, and also at Union Theological Seminary, where she received the Doctor of Sacred Music degree in 1954.

Dr. Mason has been heard in recitals throughout North and South America and Europe. She was the first American woman to play in Westminster Abbey, when she represented the United States at the International Congress of Organists in 1957. Subsequent tours of Europe have included two return engagements at Westminster Abbey: in 1963 and in 1966, the latter the occasion of the 900th anniversary of the Abbey, as well as appearances in London (Royal Festival Hall), Edinburgh, Hamburg, Berlin, Vienna and Paris (Cathedral of Notre Dame).

In 1960 she played four concerts at the Auditorio Nacional in Mexico City, the first woman organist to play in Latin America, and in 1963 she played in Spain at the International Congress of Organists. In January of 1965 through 1970, she taught and played at the International Festival of Music in Brazil. In 1970 she became the first American organist to play in Egypt when she appeared twice in Cairo: in solo recital, and in concert with the National Philharmonic Orchestra.

Because of her interest in contemporary music, Dr. Mason has commissioned numerous composers to write for the organ and has given many premiere performances.

PRESS REVIEWS

Miss Mason's position as one of the foremost American organists is unquestioned. FORT WORTH "Press"

Some of the most brilliant organ playing ever heard in the Cleveland area... Marilyn Mason makes any instrument she plays a thrilling thing to hear.

CLEVELAND "The American Organist"

RECITAL AN EVENING TO BE REMEMBERED - The high point of the recital came with the performance of Bach's most dazzling virtuoso work, the Prelude-Fugue in D major. The interpretation was one of taste and imagination, joined with a hand-and-foot dexterity which serves the bidding of a discerning musicianship.

WINNIPEG "Tribune"

Every piece of music on her program was eminently worthwhile, and every piece was played not only with brilliance but with affection, respect, imagination, taste and vitality.

SACRAMENTO

Her gracious personality and artistic genius filled the auditorium with long to be cherished memories of an evening of truly great organ music as performed by a master.

CHAMBERSBURG "Public Opinion"

The entire program provoked some of the greatest enthusiasm of the whole congress... A stunning performance.

LONDON

(Westminster Abbey) "The Diapason"

DR. MASON'S PLAYING IS DYNAMITE.

MIDDLESBROUGH (England)
"Evening Gazette"

Miss Mason is a player of remarkable technique and with an ear for tonal effects.

BRISTOL (England)
"Evening world"

She showed a controlled virtuosity as with perfect fingers and feet she played works by Bach and Reger.

BERLIN (Germany) "Berliner Morgen Post"
