About the Artist

MARILYN MASON is University Organist and Chairman of the Organ Department of the University of Michigan. Her extensive career as concert organist, lecturer, adjudicator and teacher has carried her throughout the Western world.

She was the first woman to play in Westminster Abbey, the first woman organist to play in Latin America and the first American to play in Egypt. Dr. Mason has served as adjudicator at nearly every major organ competition. Her dedication to contemporary music is evidenced in the forty-five works that she has commissioned and premiered.

Dr. Mason was chosen 1988 Performer of the Year by the New York Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. Her discography includes music of Bach, Pachelbel, Handel, and contemporary composers on Columbia and Musical Heritage Society labels.

About the Organ Builder

DAVID TANNENBERG (1728-1804) emigrated from his native Germany to Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, in 1749, where he settled among his fellow Moravians. Trained as a joiner, Tannenberg learned the art of organ building from Johann Gottlieb Klemm.

Tannenberg's instruments are rooted squarely in the central German organ building traditions. They were also constructed in an antiquated style, particularly in regards to their pipe construction and voicing, which resemble late seventeenth century German examples.

Commissioned by the Christ Lutheran Church, the organ at York is the last of about forty instruments Tannenberg built during his lifetime. He suffered a stroke and died while installing it in May, 1804. In 1814, the organ was moved to a new building. In 1874, the case was shortened during a church renovation.

It was moved again in 1905, this time to the Church's "Bee Hive Chapel." At that time, the firm of Reubin Midmer & Son "modernized" the organ, installing a more modern bellows and replacing the pedal chest and action with a tubular-pneumatic system. Wind pressure was raised; many of the pipes were revoiced. The third rank in the Mixtur may also have been removed at this time. Tannenberg's trumpet stop (the last known example) was also discarded.

Donated to the Historical Society in 1949, it was reassembled and made playable in 1959. The casework was partially restored, but Midmer's alterations were left intact. In 1990, R. J. Brunner & Co. completed a detailed cosmetic and tonal restoration of the instrument, returning the case to its original proportions. Pipe work was restored where feasible and the missing third rank of the Mixtur was replicated. Wind pressure was lowered to a more historically appropriate level. Restoration of the pedal and the wind system awaits future donations.
